The whole choral repertoire at your fingertips!

MUSICA is a multimedia, multilingual source of information about choral music.

It is an essential tool for music libraries, for choir conductors, for universities and conservatories, music publishers, and musicologists, and of interest to anyone who loves choral singing. Its success on the Internet makes it a de facto the world standard in this area of culture.

Musica is international in scope and has as its goal comprehensive coverage of choral repertoire worldwide. More than a bibliographic database, Musica is described as a virtual library of choral music, including these features:

- ♪ Bibliographic information near 200,000 scores of choral music
- ♪ Brief biographical information for over 33,000 composers and 14,000 authors of texts, with many links to additional information on the Web
- ♪ Descriptions of 2,500 publishers with many links to additional information on the Web
- ♪ Single scanned page of music for many entries
- ♪ Audio clip or video of a performance of the work for many entries
- ♪ Text of the work for many entries
- ♪ Pronunciation of the text as an audio file by a native speaker for many entries
- ♪ Translations (as available) of the text of the work in several languages for many entries
- ♪ List of composers' birth and death jubilees and other major anniversaries for the 4 coming years
- ♪ The favorite "piece of the month" (the score a choral director would take to a desert island – complete description with multimedia features)
- ♪ The Auditorium offers a list of thousands of sound clips and videos presented in an alphabetic list. Clicking on the accompanying links leads to detailed information about the corresponding scores
- ♪ Each record gives access to more than 100 different types of information (composer, arranger, title, publisher, genre, form, difficulty, choir type, language, instrumentation, etc), all searchable.

Perhaps you have already used the limited, free version of MUSICA on the Web to answer repertoire questions from your choral music faculty members and their students.

You can offer your library users much more, through subscription to complete unrestricted access to the Web site.

And if you have fixed IPs, it is possible to suppress the need of login and password, by automatic recognition of the IPs! You can extend the complete access to a whole range of IPs, this range being able to be as large as, for instance, a whole university.

...and we can even offer you to manage the holdings of your library by opening a "private" field in Musica database.
